

OFFICER CELIA KOMATHY

Officer Celia Komathy is a 28-year veteran of the Los Angeles Police Department. Komathy is best known by the Department as “CC.” She has an extensive background in not only as a patrol officer, but also manages to be actively involved in whatever community she is assigned to. As a newly appointed police officer in Newton Area, Komathy’s first introduction as a liaison between the Police Department and the community was assigned to a new pilot program called Community Outreach. From there she would network with the children after school with reading assignments, which is now one of the standard practices of our current Community Relationship Division.

Komathy had also participated as a business door to door fundraiser for the Los Angeles Police Memorial Foundation. Komathy’s background also included her many years as a Police Academy instructor and mentor for our police recruits. Her current assignment is reflective of both her community and training experience in which she is assigned to Pacific Area’s Community Relations Office.

Komathy is well deserved in being recognized for her many dedicated years of service to our Department, having volunteered her own free time in serving as a volunteer for the Los Angeles Women Police Officers and Associates (LAWPOA) Training Symposiums and the Los Angeles Police Department Women’s Leadership Conferences.
